Virginia Equal Opportunity Pilot - COVID-19 Related Learnings

The LEAD Center works in partnership with DOL's Civil Rights Center and Office of Disability Employment Policy on equal opportunity and nondiscrimination projects. COVID-19 has required services to shift to a virtual format across the country, which is impacting how providers serve people with disabilities. The LEAD team is conducting statewide, cross-system replicable training on effective Section 188 implementation in the Virginia workforce system that engages all Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) programs and their partners. The three-part training series aims to help Virginia build the capacity of their 15 workforce regions to broaden access to services and employment for people with disabilities and other challenges to employment through the implementation of WIOA Section 188 equal opportunity and non-discrimination provisions.

In addition to providing Section 188 and U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) guidance during the COVID-19 pandemic, the training emphasizes a wide range of promising practices and action planning strategies from the Section 188 Disability Reference Guide. Specifically, the trainings highlight effective strategies for discussing disability, implementing accommodation processes, strengthening workforce partnerships to collaboratively serve customers with disabilities and other challenges to employment, and increasing knowledge of key national/state/local resources to provide more effective workforce services to individuals with disabilities.

What have we learned? It is essential to:

- Have strong, committed leadership across workforce-related systems and initiatives, which has ensured high attendance at trainings and is a reflection of the cross-agency trust that has been built.
- Meet people where they are in terms of their knowledge of Section 188 requirements, best practices, and the impact of the pandemic on their own lives and the lives of job seekers with disabilities.

- Teach staff how to use existing resources and scenarios to ground the content. Resources include the Job Accommodation Network, their Equal Employment Officer, disability partners such as Centers for Independent Living, and more.
- Learn information directly from Equal Employment Officers. This allows the information shared to include real and current examples they are addressing, requests for accommodations they are implementing, and how they can support managers and staff to address issues as they come up.

Apprenticeship is an industry-driven, high-quality career pathway. Employers develop and prepare their future workforce, and individuals can obtain paid work experience, classroom instruction, mentorship, and a portable credential. For job seekers with disabilities, apprenticeship offers a model that promotes on-the-job learning and program supports that can offer a viable pathway to a well-paying career.

This LEAD Center December 3rd webinar, Registered Apprenticeship: Job Seekers with Disabilities Please Apply! offered an introduction to registered apprenticeship. Participants learned how registered apprenticeship benefits individuals, employers, and programs; what comprises the essential components of an apprenticeship program; how to differentiate apprenticeship from other work-based learning models; and how to locate apprenticeship programs available in their region and make referrals. On The Horizon

Financial Toolkit Based on Work Lifecycle:

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, people with disabilities are experiencing new levels of financial stress and unemployment. During these challenging times, it can be difficult to find clear and accurate guidance for how to manage finances. The LEAD Center Financial Toolkit will offer people with disabilities clear and accurate suggestions on how to manage finances no matter where they are in the work lifecycle.

The LEAD Center is working with DOL's Employee Benefits Security Administration (EBSA), Employment and Training Administration, and Office of Disability Employment Policy to create an online Financial Toolkit, scheduled to be available to the public in early 2021. The toolkit will be hosted on the EBSA website.

The Financial Toolkit will focus on obtaining and maintaining employment, including an emphasis on the financial decisions an individual needs to make along the lifecycle of employment: (1) preparing for a job; (2) starting a job; (3) maintaining a job; (4) losing a job or changing a job; and (5) or retiring. Each section of the Toolkit will offer users tools and resources to help think about and address financial questions related to each of the five stages of the work lifecycle.
